

New Silicon Valley Offshore Incubator

New Silicon Valley Offshore Incubator is a cutting edge full-service center located in the Silicon Valley of California, an area thrived with the most advanced technologies and innovative startups in the world. It provides a unique combination of on-demand, multi-functional office space with a wide variety of professional services which include human resource and IT support, basic legal consulting, financial services and investment connections. Through regular lecture series and professional networking events, the Incubator aims to create a dynamic environment for creativity, focus, and collaboration where entrepreneurs, companies and organizations from both United States and China grow together.

The primary goal of New Silicon Valley Offshore Incubator is to become the premier destination for business leaders, investors, high-tech industrial parks and research institutes who are coming from China to Silicon Valley. Here they will find an open window onto the Silicon Valley entrepreneurial environment and to the broader US markets beyond. The Launching Pad will be the best place to find opportunities to expand existing businesses, find new partners, discover new talent for hire, open new markets, develop new technologies, establish a US presence and discover promising investment opportunities. The Launching Pad also strives become the premier destination for entrepreneurs, technologists and business people coming from the private, public and education sectors who want to start their own companies in a setting where opportunities abound both for collaboration with like-minded people and for interaction with the many prominent business leaders, investors, and entrepreneurs from China.
